

Christofer Benjamin

4612 SanDiego Manor • Gainesville, GA 30501 • (123) 456-7890
yourmail@email.com

Objective: Position of Senior Aeronautical Engineer in a reputed Aeronautical Organization

Experience

Conway Incorporated
Aeronautical Engineer

Gainesville, GA
June 2004 to Present

- Designed, developed and tested military aircraft component systems
- Tested models, prototypes, subassemblies and production vehicles to evaluate operational characteristics and effects of stress imposed during simulated and actual flight conditions
- Specialized in design and development of structural components such as wings, fuselage, rib assemblies, landing gear and operational control systems
- Was selected to serve as project manager on two high profile military projects
- Wrote a manual on improved project management for internal company use

Mueller and Sellers
Aeronautical Engineer

Racine, WI
November 2001 to May 2004

- Planned technical phases of air transportation systems and other aspects of flight operations, maintenance and logistics
- Specialized in operational control systems

Education

Racine State University
Master of Science in Aerospace Engineering

Racine, WI

Publications and Awards

Published three articles in the Journal of Aeronautical Engineering
Received Mueller and Sellers' "Design of the Year" award for resolving an operational control systems problem

References: Available upon request